In October 2005, Project Ho`omohala received funding from the Comprehensive Community Mental Health Services for Children and Their Families Program to develop a system of care for transition age youth with serious emotional and behavioral disturbances living in the Kalihi-Palama community in O`ahu, Hawaii. Over the course of the project, staff have identified the strengths and weaknesses of the project's fiscal procedures. Adjustments were made when appropriate, while new policies were developed when none existed previously.
